Subject

"Reassembling History"

A continent separates the Contra Costa hills and the quiet pastures of Virginia but the two areas have one thing in common. They are both the sites of archaeological digs headed by Lowie Museum director, Dr. James Deetz, anthropologist.

Somersville, founded in 1856 in Contra Costa County, was a coal-mining town extracting low-grade coal from Mount Diablo. Flowerdew Hundred Plantation in Virginia was one of the earliest English settlements in the New World producing corn and tobacco. Dr. Deetz, a leader in the relatively new field of historical archaeology is assembling the history of both of these sites.

Join Dr. Deetz for a fascinating trip through time examining the culture and lifestyles of native Americans, settlers, farmers and miners and for a look at the various methods and sources used to reassemble history.

Your membership card admits you through the main entrance of Cowell Hall for the evening presentations and through Cowell Hall and Wattis Hall entrances for the matinee. Please be prepared to show your card once again at the auditorium door for the matinee presentation.

SNEAK PREVIEW: Edwin Bernbaum will give a slide/lecture entitled "Hidden Valleys of the Himalayas" at the members' meetings on May 12 and 13, 1982

Junior Academy Field Trips

Once again the Junior Academy is offering field trips in April and May. Please call the Junior Academy at 221-5100 ext. 221 for further information.

California's water is one of the most important issues facing us today. What's happening to the Bay and the Delta? Is the water cleaner than it was last year? Are there more shellfish than 10 years ago? What impact will the Peripheral Canal have on our everyday lives? A special conference entitled "State of the Bay" will be presented on Friday, June 4, in the Morrison Auditorium to answer these questions and your participation is encouraged and needed. Watch for details and a registration form in your May Newsletter or call the Oceanic Society at 441-5970 for information. "State of the Bay" is a cooperative effort presented by The California Academy of Sciences, the San Francisco Chapter of the Oceanic Society, the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, the Bay Area Council, the American Planning Association, the Tiburon Center for Environmental Studies, and the Army Corps of Engineers.

SPECIAL PRESENTATION

Antarctic Adventure

Speaker: James Snyder
8:00 p.m. Morrison Auditorium
Tuesday, April 13, 1982

At the bottom of the world lies the coldest, windiest and highest continent, with a land mass greater than that of Mexico and the United States combined - Antarctica! James Snyder, an experienced wildlife photographer, has called the MS Lindblad Explorer home for the last four years as a naturalist-lecturer, scuba diving leader and zodiac operator on expeditions all over the world. In this special presentation Mr. Snyder will include slides and a film, all taken from the Explorer, and will lecture on the coastal areas of the continent and the sub-antarctic islands, such as the Falklands.

Admission to this special presentation is free.
